HONORABLE JAMES F. ROCKETT

Envisage

We shall remember what we know and love:
Loftiness as well as common things.
Firm ties we formed by stranger power than friendship's bond,
A trust we made
A prayer we prayed
A kindly word when wanted most.
Time cannot dim a loveliness;
Lilac, after winter's chill appears to bloom again,
And much of what has been will live.
Our hopes will still abide.
Foundations we have built:
A richer mind
A stronger will
Our truer selves to thank
For what we are,
A heart to understand the doubts
So often found in younger hearts.
We know that much of giving rests in little things:
A quiet praise, a kindness, and a sympathy.
So much of joy is felt in being wise
For wanting only what is right.
More thoughtful now in having planned and learned and lost:
More proud for having loved and risked and lived.
We shall remember what has gone before:
A day when all the world aspired to happiness
And shattered faith gave way to surety,
A day when life was hard, and silent,
And more vague than shadows
On a darkened shore at night.
We have not dreamed false dreams
And though these years are closed
As night is closed when dawning lights the earth.
Our hearts are strong enough to hope and trust
That retribution comes to all who strive.
There will be remembrances:
The gift of summer's glory lives throughout the years
And much of what is beautiful endures.

Three Hundred Years of Education in Rhode Island

In this year of the Tercentenary it is wholly fitting that the Yearbook of Rhode Island College of Education should contain a brief synopsis of Rhode Island Education from the beginning. Unfortunately, lack of space forbids a really thoroughgoing article; those who wish the whole story will find it ably told by my beloved teacher and friend, the late Dr. Charles Carroll in Rhode Island: Three Centuries of Democracy and in Public Education in Rhode Island.

Like all worthwhile things, our local institution has a past, a present, and a future. The present and the future include a well-organized public school system, the past also includes one, but not one that stretches all the way back to 1636. Although the number of early settlers was made up to a large degree of educated men, naturally the work of making new homes came first. So it was not until four years later (August, 1640) that a system of public education was launched in Newport with Robert Lenthal as the first American public school teacher. At that time the town meeting voted to set aside 100 acres of land for a school, a four acre house lot for the schoolmaster, and the income from another hundred acres of land to pay expenses for the training of those who could not afford teachers or tutors.

Record of matters scholastic throughout the rest of the Plantations is hazy as to exact detail, but it is clear that there were provisions made for education in Providence, Warwick, and Portsmouth. That these provisions were made by the people as a part of the public government is made clear by reference in public documents. Furthermore, the fact that Newport's efforts came in 1640 gives the State reason to claim for itself the start of the American public school system.

It might also be noted in passing that the nature of the instruction, while sober and godly, was not theological as were the systems of some of the neighboring states. In its schools the colony was reflecting its political philosophy.

With the 1700's, town records became more distinct and it is evident that Newport, Providence, Warwick, and Portsmouth were not without their followers: a tradition of public education had been established. Local policies were being set in motion which would finally evolve into a state system. The move was to open schools for every one who felt the need or had the desire for betterment. No attempt was made at compulsory attendance; the opportunity was offered but not enforced.

No institution can develop without the impetus of enthusiastic individuals who get results. Of these Rhode Island has had its share. The first of them was John Howland. A Revolutionary veteran by the age of twenty, he was able to bend the ex-soldier's energy into socially beneficial channels. Under his eye the matter of free schools in Providence was gone into exhaustively. No longer was it a question of setting aside this house or that parcel of land for school purposes. There were now plans and careful thought and regulations and curricula and principles set down. From this time on, chance was to play no part. The attention of the people was focussed on the schools, especially as regards progressive improvements.

If any proof of this fact were needed, it could be found in the rising demand for a state system of free public schools which was satisfied by an act of the General Assembly in 1828. An improvement in conditions in the state was noticeable as a result. State aid was granted the towns. In the ensuing years the need for further state aid was seen. The General Assembly obliged. In Act and deed the Assembly became the state school committee as a result of the establishment of the State Constitution in 1842. By the same token at that time provisions for public education were written into the Constitution.

In the next year Wilkins Updike, Representative from South Kingstown, introduced a bill calling for a survey of the public schools of the state. So able was his explanation of the need and purpose of this bill that it was passed unanimously by both houses of the Assembly. That his was no common bill may be seen from the fact that the man chosen to carry out the survey was Henry Barnard. Barnard was a man of experience, intelligence, and ability. He went into his task with energy. The results of his survey were incorporated in a new set of school laws introduced into the Assembly in May, 1844, and passed in the next year. At this time the office of Commissioner of Public Schools was created (the first Commissioner was Barnard), provisions were made for a fuller organization and supervision of local school districts, provisions were made for a minimum school year, and standards of improvement were set up, especially in regard to teachers, which went so far as to start certification. Support of the schools by the towns was made compulsory and machinery was set up to ensure the public of getting what the laws called for.

At this late date Henry Barnard's services in Rhode Island need no new praise. It is doubtful that any aspect of his work can be found which has not had its approving notice. All that we can do is add to the quantity of the applause. His work was not over with the passing of his school law. Through his office as Commissioner he continued his striving for improvement. As ramifications, from his term have come such necessities as stronger attendance laws, free text books, and provision for training teachers (the Normal School was finally established in 1871.) Naturally, the whole credit for these reforms cannot be given to Barnard. His successors in office—in particular his immediate successor, Elisha R. Potter—merit much gratitude. Under Commissioner Thomas W. Bicknell a State Board of Education was formed, and the state system was in full swing—a system which was destined to expand under the wise administration of Dr. Walter E. Ranger.

The history of Rhode Island education since the time of the first Commissioners has consisted largely in widening the scope of the public schools. Attendance laws, state aid, mandatory maintenance laws, and ever more rigid certificate requirements when linked with other progressive measures have served to give the state a good name in educational circles. Step by step education is taking the position it deserves in society. The present is based on the sound and the enlightened policy of the past, and the future will be built upon the accumulation of the past and the present. What the future will be no one can tell exactly. At any rate, judging from what has happened up to the present, there will be space allotted for further state aid, for further modification of the attendance laws, for a forward and upward push of all minimum requirements, for consolidation of schools in large districts in order to provide richer opportunities for the children, for extension of the powers and responsibilities of the state department under our able director, James Rockett, for a standard improvement in the advantages offered to the people of Rhode Island through the schools, for an ever-improving group of teachers, and for an energetic, capable, and public-spirited citizenry.

To the Members of the Class of 1936:

No nation can be truly great which does not insure the security of its own future by insisting upon an adequate education for its citizens.

There must be in every schoolroom a teacher who has the power as well as the purpose to conserve the priceless opportunities of youth.

To the Members of the Class of 1936:

Those men and women who find freedom and happiness in the profession of teaching are they who consciously strive for the realization of ideals in the lives of individual pupils. Honest teaching is a sympathetic and conscious process, involving far more than the application of set formulas or the employment of stereotyped patterns.

Seniors, elect to become happy teachers! Foster towards fulfillment in the lives of the young people charged to you, the highest attainable good. The soul working towards God craves truth and virtue and beauty. Begin your work by determination to minister to these cravings.

Charles Carroll

We shall serve Rhode Island, the state which has done so much for each of us in the Class of 1936, because we have been inspired by a great man and a great educator. Dr. Charles Carroll loved his state devotedly and served it with distinction.

Learned—Dr. Carroll inspired us in such a way that we can never cease learning if we be true to him.

Noble—Dr. Carroll demonstrated to us in his own living the nobility of human character.

Devoted—we learned through him what it means to serve in good causes.

Human—he was a jolly, chuckling, lovable man.

Grand—he will forever stand in front of us in blessed memory on a mountain peak of esteem.

*Sleep on, O brave hearted, O wise man, that kindled the flame—
To live in mankind is far more than to live in a name.
To live in mankind, far, far more—than to live in a name.*

Harriet Lucia Sherman

When a lovely October day is drawing to its close, we anticipate the beauties of the sunset. When a lovely life is nearing the end of its earthly span, affection and friendship inspire us to seek beauty in that life. So it was with the life of our beloved teacher who went from us in our Senior year.

From day to day, we learned to love Professor Sherman: and then, at the last, from hour to hour we knew that the setting of her life's sun was expanding until there was left with us the abundant glow of respect, understanding, sympathy, love—qualities which had endeared Professor Sherman to all members of the Class of 1936.

In a new day, there is sunrise. Professor Sherman has gone from us into a more abundant life of spiritual growth and service.

*And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which we have loved long since and lost awhile.*

Class History

Emanating from all corners of Rhode Island, early in May of the year 1932 A. D., a heterogeneous group of youthful aspirants to the teaching profession assembled to be subjected to a competitive examination, the survivors of which were to form a homogeneous group to be known as the Class of 1936 of Rhode Island College of Education.

Accordingly, the fortunate few gathered here to spend four years under the direct guidance of Alma Mater. Looking back in retrospect, now, we recall those years as fleeting memories, yet we realize that they have developed qualities which time can never destroy.

In the chronicles of Rhode Island College of Education the period between September 1932 and June 1933 is recorded as the Freshman Age.

Organization, that problem which presents itself for solution at the very outset of such an enterprise, was definitely settled for us when we chose Sidney Long as our President.

A delightful party, extended to us by the Sophomores, and a minstrel show at which we were the guests of the Juniors, served to introduce us to the social life of the College. Anxious to show that we were capable of entertaining as well as being entertained, we invited the Sophomores to be our guests for an afternoon of enjoyment.

A Pale Red Letter Day—we, the Freshmen, received honorable mention in the Annual Song Contest.

When we were Sophomores, we again placed Sidney Long at the helm of the Good Ship '36 and away we sailed upstream, at a pace from which we have never deviated. We began by extending a cordial welcome to the latest protégés of Alma Mater. This year brought to us the privilege of wearing the College insignia—our rings.

We took the tuberculin test and wondered for a while whether it was "T. B. or not T. B."

Impelled by an inner urge to do something that would bring us into the limelight, with action as our watchword, we instituted what has come to be a college tradition. Undaunted by the three days of gruelling examination which preceded our day of days, we were determined to make Sophomore Day a success. We decked ourselves with flowers, lunched sumptuously, published an issue of the Anchor, entertained our sister classes at an Assembly Program, and then culminated our fête by transporting our guests to the Orient for the Soph Hop.

The final events of the second era were the carrying of the daisy chain by some of our members, as a flower escort for the Seniors on Class Day; and our Class Banquet at the Wayland Manor.

Another era, the period between September 1934 and June 1935, is recorded in the annals of the College as the Junior Age. The reception which we extended to the Freshmen took the form of an informal tea—a rather grim evidence of the rapidly growing maturity of the Class of 1936. Amidst much élan and splendor, we enjoyed a most delightful Junior Promenade at the Hotel Biltmore.

"There comes a time in the life of every man"—and that time was now here—for some of our number to go forth to plant the seeds of learning in the youth of our State. Those who were not yet called remained here to study further. Those of us who stayed at College chose Betty Cary as President.

The next splurge came early in June when we acted as hosts to the Seniors and their friends at an informal tea on the terrace. A few days later our entire class assembled again, and amidst much reminiscing, we enjoyed the Class Banquet at the Narragansett Hotel.

Those who had rendered an account of their stewardship now returned to College, while the other group went forth to seek the fruition of their academic labors. During this period we mourned the passing of two of our beloved faculty members, Dr. Charles Carroll and Professor Lucia Sherman.

The first social event of great import to mark the Senior Age was the Military Hop. We didn't have the Army or the Militia or the C. C. C., but we did have a grand time. With the investiture in Cap and Gown, we seemed to imbibe some of the dignity which is associated with the academic robe. Realizing that the days of our sojourn here were numbered, we held a reception for the faculty who had done so much to make our days happy ones. May Week brought the coronation of Katherine Deery as May Queen.

Commencement, the season for which we had waited four seemingly long years, brought with it the usual heat. On our Class Day we marched proudly through the Sophomore Daisy Chain to receive our degree pins. Next was Baccalaureate Sunday and then Ivy Day, highlighted by our final class meeting, the Banquet. Our Commencement exercises all too soon catalogued our College Days as memories.

Class Will

We the Class of 1936, being of sound mind do herein set forth our last will and testament.

We as a group, bequeath:

To the members of the Faculty our deep affection and sincere appreciation for all they have done to make the past four years profitable and happy ones.

To the succeeding classes the joys of Senior Observation, any notebooks which have survived, the thrill of Play Day, and the reincarnated Rec Room.

As individuals we direct the execution of the following bequests:

I, Phyllis Adams, do will and bequeath my position as secretary and general office boy of the history department to Helen McWilliams, next in rank.

I, Emma Aeillo, will to some undergraduate the soap that will be left in the orchid soap dish by June of this year.

I, Gloria Bachand, do hereby will to whomever it may concern the honor of being the shortest person in R. I. C. E.

I, Violet Bagalia, bequeath to Grace Rafanelli the assurance of my absence from her study periods so that she may finally use them for that for which they were intended.

I, Lillis Mae Barber, do bequeath to Louise Grissom a spot in Olneyville Square in which to stand in order to get a ride home.

I, Arlene Butler, will to some unsuspecting Junior whose name begins with "B" my seat in chapel under the speaker's stand.

I, Marcia Capron, bequeath to Lillian Lewis, Freshman, my distinction for holding down front seats in every class.

I, Elizabeth Cary, leave my passion for sailor hats and anchors to Elizabeth Carney.

I, Catherine Mary Cassidy, bequeath to whomsoever it may concern the precious faculty of falling asleep whenever so moved.

I, Harriet Cavanagh, bequeath to the next occupant of locker 210 the pleasure of caring for the little orphan mouse who has found a home there.

I, Frances Cook, leave the decoration of the gym before informal dances to Betty Carney with the hope that she will be able to penetrate its doors before 5 P. M.

I, Mary Coristine, leave to some worrying Junior the ability to pass tests without worrying.

I, Ruth Craig, bequeath to some deserving Junior my ability to sleep with my eyes open.

I, Virginia Cunningham, leave to Evelyn Walsh the pleasure of collecting the Anchor mail every morning.

I, Sally Dale, leave to Peggy Clark the over-burdensome task of carrying one glass of water to the lunch table in four years.

I, Kitty Deery, leave my dependence on the Westerly train (for moral support) to Marion Walton.

I, Raphaelina De Rosa, bequeath to Eleanor Rae the art of being a good listener in all discussions.

I, Margaret M. DeRosier, hereby bequeath the ability to buy queer and sensational millinery creations to Louise Langlois.

I, Mary Dulleba, hereby bequeath my large feet (size three) to Jerry Monticone, to carry on the burden of dancing to the best of her ability just as I have done.

We, Eleanor Flynn and Dorothy Lawton, do bequeath to any deserving underclassman our persuasive powers in obtaining souvenirs from the police officer at the top of the hill.

I, Frances Elkey, bequeath to Beatrice Knowles, '38, my position as representative from Narragansett.

I, Mary Foley, bequeath to some innocent Junior my love for bacteriology and my reserved seat at Gibson's on the Mall.

I, Rita Geary, do hereby bequeath to Harriet Trainor my use of the library during study hours.

I, Helen Geddes, bequeath my ability to catch the 7:40 Pawtucket-bound bus to Mildred Waugh of the Junior Class.

I, Gertrude Goldberg, bequeath my "infectious" giggle to Beatrice Kaplan of the Junior Class.

We, Norma Gouse and Betty Roy, bequeath to those underclassmen who walk through the State House grounds the pleasure of seeing the hands of the court house clock at 8:58.

I, Lillian Hallock, bequeath to the shy maidens of the Class of 1939 the virtuous art of blushing.

I, Ruth Hanson, bequeath my early morning greetings to the janitors and my seat in room 102 to any underclassman who is foolish enough to get to school early.

I, Ola Hinckley, leave my drag (?) with Mr. Ethier to anyone who wants it.

I, Dorothy Kane, leave to some daring Freshman my red coat and hat and one "Betty Boop" hair dress.

I, Rita Kavanagh, will my boom-ming, off key alto voice to Mary McGovern of the Freshman class.

We, Kathryn Keenan and Helen King, do hereby bequeath our combined ability to model little animals and pretty faces to Rosalie Corkery.

I, Frances Kinkead, hereby bequeath my excess pounds to any undergraduate.

I, Mildred Kraigenow, bequeath to Lovice Thornley my huge lunches on condition that she remain thin.

We, Annette Laurence and Rita McHugh, do hereby bequeath to Cunny Kelly and Ginny Ibbotson the ability to formulate class politics in Practical Law.

I, Sidney Long, bequeath to my successor the pleasure of holding down the front end of the receiving line at the All College Ball.

I, Mary Low, do bequeath to Betty Holliday the privilege of keeping up a reputation gained through coming from Westerly.

We, Gail McLeod and Alice Peabody, bequeath to any deserving underclassmen our cards at the Providence Library with the hope that they be used to good advantage.

We, Elizabeth and Jane Maguire, do bequeath to Doris Maguire, Freshman, the honor of upholding the family name.

I, Irene Massover, hereby bequeath to any underclassman who wants it the pleasure of having the Smith Street car shut its back doors in his face after he has run across the Mall at 8:50 to catch it.

I, Mary Virginia McCaffrey, leave my seat in the lunchroom to Claire Barry in hopes that she will use it as much as I have.

I, Ruth McCaughey, will to any poor unsuspecting underclassman my name which is so utterly unpronounceable to the faculty.

I, Richard McDermott, leave to Brendan Murphy of the Junior Class that most unappreciated task of correcting the English usage of the faculty.

I, Anita McQueeney, do hereby bequeath to Peggy Clark my industrious and energetic early arrival in the morning.

I, Evelyn Moffit, will my locker lock to any Junior who enjoys puzzles.

I, Palma Montanaro, do bequeath one coat-hanger to any Freshman who has one minute to make Chapel.

I, Beverly Munroe, bequeath to Mary J. Riley the left hand corner of the locker room to be cherished as the one warm corner in the College.

I, Sophie Naimark, hereby will to the laziest underclassman the cherished keys to the elevator, if and when they fall to my possession before Commencement.

I, Gerry O'Donnell bequeath to the library a copy of Meredith's Hygiene with the specification that it be kept under lock and key.

I, Genevieve Pagnano, bequeath to Ruth Kerr my little red handkerchief, which has proved a good eraser of soot from my friends' noses.

I, Claire Palmer, bequeath my iron-bound conscience to that undergraduate who can most successfully control it at will.

I, Winifred Pitt, herewith bequeath my skill in missing the 8:05 Express for Providence to Judy Lapatin.

I, Dorothy Potter, will to Anna Beirne the right to wait each morning at Calla Street for a Broad Street car.

I, Anna Quirk, will to Marita Kiernan the right to spend her vacation at Oak Bluffs.

I, Gertrude Sarkisian, bequeath to Ruthie Rubin the pleasure of sliding down Park Street hill on icy mornings.

I, Josephine Shea, hereby will and bequeath to Mary Sullivan the privilege of clattering through the corridors in four-inch heels, much to the disapproval of the Health Department.

I, Alberta Snell, bequeath to Lois Almy the privilege of cutting Political Science three times a week when she becomes a Senior.

I, Frances Sobota, bequeath to Lydia Catalozzi the privilege and pleasure of being a brain-truster in one field.

I, Carrie Salisbury, do will to some underclassman my aversion to noise in Chapel.

I, Ruth Slater, will to Mildred Waugh my perfect attendance record at Chapel, to be carried on faithfully.

I, Alice Sullivan, bequeath my position as official faculty imitator to Catherine Willemín.

I, Pearl Sullivan, will to the treasurer of the Junior Class my bottle of green ink to keep future Seniors out of the "red".

I, Annie Thornton, will to some member of the Class of 1937 the privilege of crocheting while listening to economics lectures.

I, Marguerite Vermette, will my red-headed temper to Florence Meister to help her in fighting next year's RICOLED worries.

I, Anne Vernon, bequeath my ability to make faces (in modeling class) to some ambitious sculptor.

I, Mary E. Welch, bequeath to Mary Hutton the privilege of experimenting during some interesting lecture with Gertrude Stein's idea of Normal Motor Automatism.

I, Kay Williams, do hereby will and bequeath to Sis Slavin my gift for sleeping through certain classes on the convenient shoulder of the Student Council President.

I, Rose Wolosiewicz, do hereby will and bequeath to Marguerite Bucci of the Junior Class the winter pastime of closing the gym door for the protection of those who "live" in the locker room.

I, Helene Wynne, bequeath to some unfortunate the joys of always being at the end of the list and at the back of the room.

The remainder and residue of our estate, including whatever traditions or precedents we may have perpetuated or instituted, we leave in trust to our successors, the Junior Class.

Signed and sealed this twentieth day of May in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred thirty-six.

By VIRGINIA CUNNINGHAM,

For the Class of 1936.

"There's Something In a Name!"...

For more than half a century, one of our most cherished possessions has been the high esteem with which our fellow Rhode Islanders have regarded the name of Shepard's . . .
a reputation for the best of service, the best of value and the best of quality when you buy anything under this name!
